

OPENING FIGURE

The 5-Second View

The athlete crosses a threshold. Within five seconds: volume, fitness, load, risk—four numerals that decide whether today is push or pull.

MIDDLE PASSAGE

Fitness, Patiently Plotted

Twenty-four observations. A target line. A confidence band that narrows as the weeks compound. The plan is working — quietly, then noticeably.

ACCUMULATION

Volume × Ratio

READ

Hold steady this week.

Last week's spike landed back inside productive band.
No need to back off; no need to push further.

OPTION A

Horizontal Zone Bars

Distribution — where the miles went.

in the mockup today — one row per zone, ranked by volume.

OPTION B

Stacked Weekly Trend

Trend + composition — is volume building?

8 weeks; each bar = one week, segmented by zone color.

OPTION C

Day-of-Week Rhythm

Cadence — is the week balanced?

7 bars Mon-Sun; segmented by zone or single-color.

OPTION D

This Week vs Last

Direct comparison — did I match last week?

side-by-side bars per zone with numeric delta.

Four ways to show the same data. Pick the one that matches the question a runner asks at this point in the screen.
